Just as the bird soars to new heights so can the students of RHS. RHS affords many opportunities for learning as well as growing. We on the annual staff hope that you will treasure this book in years to come, along with memories of learning, growing, and roaming the halls. And it is with this hope that we present to you the Rappahannock '79.

SENIORS

The Seniors of '79 will have the opportunity to explore new frontiers as well as soar to new heights. As the Seniors leave RHS, many are uncertain of the paths they will follow, but they will be spurred on by the prospect of new goals, new chances for learning, and new lives.

ACTIVITIES

Many students have participated in the activities this year provided for their enjoyment and for their learning experiences.

Through the various clubs, students have the chance to absorb knowledge outside the classroom, while developing leadership qualities and responsibilities needed for life.

TOP FIVE SENIORS OF RHS: Bonnie Yeatman Carolyn Sydnor Jay Wilson Donna Pierson Gen Ash

To You, Mr. Long, We Dedicate The 1979 Rappahannock

For your understanding and patience, your help and advice, and for just being as kind as you are, We, the Seniors of 1979, dedicate the 1979 edition of the Rappahannock to you.

Those in the DE program and the DECA Club perhaps know better than the rest of your help and guidance. For the rest of the students, many of which have come to you for their worker's permits, your constant presence in several aspects of school life allows you to come in constant contact with everyone. In your job as Activities Director for the school, you have given much of your time — as it requires your supervision of all school activities. For all this and more, Mr. Long, we thank you.

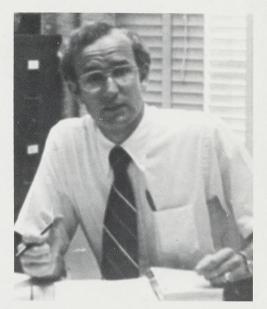

ADMINISTRATION

The Administration at RHS endeavors to enrich the students' knowledge as they strive to instill in the students such ethics that will prepare them for life in the community. This guidance is a must in development of the students into good citizens and makes it possible for them to achieve their goals.
